Husband's Surrender for Crime DIDN'T CASH CHECKS, Frees Wife of Load of Terror SO LOSES $125,000

> Dale Saved Them Because They Were Presents from His Wife.

BESIDES, HE WAS TO INHERIT HER ESTATE

But Former Widow of Kellogg Forgot Romance and Others Now Get Her Money.

The confidence of Alfred G. Dale, a broker, in the assurance of his wife, Mrs. Annie Kellogg Dale, thet she would leave him the bulk of her estate, and his failure to cash checks aggregating $120,000, will cost Dale the face value of the checks. Mrs. Dale died December 22, 1912, leaving Dale, who was her second husband and had been her private secretary, the life interest from $50,000, instead of the major part of her estate, as, he raid, she had promised.

The transfer tax appraisal of the estate, filed yesterday in the Surro-

The transfer tax appraisal of the estate, filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court, shows that Mrs. Dale left a gross estate of $1.541,517, mos. of it going to relatives of her first husband. Ansel N. Kellogg. The report of the appraiser shows also that Dale's claim for $125,000 on the checks he failed to present for payment was not allowed. Therefore Dale will receive only the income for life on the $50,000 trust fund created for him. trust fund created for him.

Mrs. Belle Weibezahn, a sister of Mrs. Belle Weibezahn, a sister of Mrs. Dale, who was cut off, contested the will. It was reported at the time that Dale, who did not take part in the contest, based on the alleged mental incompetence of the testatrix, had settled with the estate for $150,000. There was actions in the appraisal proceedings to with the estate for $160,000. There was nothing in the appraisal proceedings to show that such settlement had been made. The will was upheld.

The provision for Dale by his wife really was an afterthought. In her will she created a trust fund of $150,000 for him, which she reduced in a codicil to $50,000.

Dale first met the woman who later became his wife when he was a messenger in the Fifth Avenue Bank, where she was a depositor. She was then the wife of Ansel N. Kellogg, head of a newspaper company. Later Dale became connected with the Corn Exchange Bank and acted as secretary for Mrs. Kellogg, who was twenty years his senior. When her husband died he married her.

Cready Asks Cousin's Removal

Francis Marion Whaley, a nephew of the late Nathaniel L. McCready, filed a suit yesterday in the Supreme Court asking the removal of his cousin, Na-thaniel L. McCready, as trustee under the will of the defendant's father, who left an estate valued at about $1,000,-000.

Whaley's mother, Mrs. Louisine M.

Whaley's mother, Mrs. Louisine M. Whaley, died, leaving the trust created for her in the will of her brother, Nathaniel L. McCready, to her son, the petitioner, and to his son, an infant. Whaley alleges that the son of the testator has never filed an account of his trusteeship or of the property received and administered under the several trusts. He also alleges on infor-mation and belief that the trustee has permitted the funds in his care to be-come mixed with his own property.

Deadly, but Legal.

There was absolutely nothing for the police to do, the hearest approach to a police find being when Adolph Wolf, the eculptor, was asked by a Central office man "hat a long package sticking out of his pocket contained.

"Oh, it's deadly, all right," said Welf, "but it's within the law."

And he produced a cigar eighteen inches leng intended for use in some private theatricals.

Next to Tannenbaum, the star of the eccasion was "Ed" Lewis, described as the "best mob leader in the movement," a regular "soap boxer." He denounced almost everybody when Chairman "Teal" Eraser introduced him as the
